Welfare, Institutions . . .

Exon's Spending Levels Accepted

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Exon administration's recommended spending levels for public welfare and for the operation of public institutions were accepted Friday by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

The public assistance funding level proposed by the Department of Public Welfare assumes continuation of the 9% ratable reduction in standards for aid to dependent children payments.

Recommended funding for assistance programs for the aged, the blind, the disabled, ADC families and medical assistance was endorsed by the committee without a dissenting vote.

The public assistance portion of the department's budget will be allocated in a lump sum appropriation, giving administrators the opportunity to shift funds from one sub-program to another.

Hinges On Earmarking

Acceptance of the administration's request was predicted, however, on an accompanying committee decision to earmark a portion of the department's budget for a program of medical assistance cost controls.

Estimated medical assistance costs for the coming fiscal year are more than $51 million. The costs for the current fiscal year were approximately $45 million.

The committee voted 6-2 to accept the Department of Public Institutions' all-funds budget request, but decided to increase financing from the state tax-supported general fund by about $1.7 million.

That determination was made in view of fears that the department had overestimated its likely cash fund receipts by that amount. The cash fund (chiefly support payments from counties) estimate was reduced from $13.2 million to $11.5 million.

More Flexibility

In order to give administrators more flexibility, the committee decided to budget lump sum appropriations by category, including mental health, corrections, mental retardation and miscellaneous health care.

The categorical appropriation will replace the usual program appropriation for each institution, and will, the committee reasoned, make it easier for the department to function within an admittedly conservative budget.

Although minor adjustments were made within the budget, fiscal 1972-73 spending for institutions will be increased by less than 4% to about $38.6 million.

The state general fund figure was reduced from $24 million to $21.4 million.

The decision to move to categorical funding was particularly aimed at providing flexibility within the programs of mental health and mental retardation care.

General fund levels for most mental institutions were reduced by the department.

$45,000 For Prison Gym

In other action, the committee gave the Department of Institutions the green light to transfer $45,000 from its current capital construction account for use in constructing a temporary gymnasium at the Penitentiary.

The committee also made minor adjustments within the welfare budget proposal, but generally approved the totals in the $105 million document. All-funds spending for fiscal 1972-73 will increase by about 21%, while general fund appropriations rise about 14%.

The welfare package includes a $26.3 million estimate for ADC payments.

In accepting the proposal, the committee assumed the department will, as promised, fully fund county administration costs.

The committee decided to add one more staff member than requested in Crippled Children Services to help handle additional responsibilities resulting from the closing of Lincoln's Orthopedic Hospital.

Subsidized Adoption

Also attached to the budget was earmarking of $15,000 for implementation of a program of subsidized adoption approved by the 1971 Legislature.

The institutions budget will result in closing of the Nebraska Hospital for the Tuberculous at Kearney, with subsequent arrangement for alternative services.

The committee is scheduled to complete its public hearings next week with presentations from the University of Nebraska, state colleges and the Nebraska Educational Television Commission.

A final decision on recommended salary increases for state employees is tentatively scheduled for next Thursday.

Decision-making executive sessions have been scheduled for next Friday and the following Monday and Tuesday, paving the way for preparation of the committee's operational budget bill.

MIGs Attempt Attack

Saigon (UPI)—North Vietnamese MIGs tried to attack a flight of giant American B52 bombers over Laos for the first time in the war a little less than two weeks ago, U.S. military sources said Friday.

The sources said the incident occurred 11 days ago when several of the Russian-built jets approached a flight of B52s striking in the Laotian panhandle near the North Vietnamese border, and fired air-to-air missiles in their direction.

"Wild Weasel" American F105 fighters escorting the eight-engine heavy bombers broke away and then chased the MIGs, but were unable to catch them, the source said.

CUB GOES TO KINDERGARTEN AT CLINTON

When they're grown up, the kindergartners at Clinton School taught by Mrs. Mick Zangari will remember Friday. That was the day Thor, a 4-month-old lion cub, came to see them in class. The little lion came from St. Paul, Minn. He's being raised by Jim Kerley, a former University of Nebraska student, who says Thor is most likely headed for a zoo, since he is outgrowing the pet stage. One brave kindergartner is even holding the tip of Thor's tail. (Star Photo)

Judge Delays Minimum Milk Price Law

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin Friday issued a temporary injunction halting the State of Nebraska from enforcing basic minimum prices for dairy products scheduled to become effective Monday.

Judge Ronin said he was granting the temporary relief sought by Safeway Stores, Inc. so the "state of the matter may be continued until trial on the merits of the case."

He said a "real controversy" exists with constitutionality questions involved and indicated that he felt the trial on the merits could be set soon after the first of the year.

Price Fixing

Safeway, in an action filed Wednesday, had asked for the temporary injunction and challenged the constitutionality of the Nebraska Dairy Pricing Act on grounds it constitutes discriminatory and invalid price fixing.

Omaha attorney R. A. Skochdopole, representing Safeway, told the court that irreparable injury would be done to Safeway and the public if the temporary injunction were not granted and the act is later found unconstitutional.

He said he was merely asking that the "status quo" be maintained.

Skochdopole told the court that if the price minimums are allowed to go into effect, Safeway would be required to raise prices in Lincoln from 93 cents to $1.06 on a gallon of milk and from 49 cents to 52 cents on a half-gallon.

He said the effect of the state board's order is to make two one-half gallons of milk cheaper than one gallon and four quarts cheaper yet.

The Omaha attorney noted that, under the new minimums, Safeway would be charging 24 cents for a quart or four quarts would amount to 96 cents.

"Normally buying in quantity results in lower cost," he said.

Skochdopole noted that the present Safeway milk prices are above cost and contain a margin of profit and to increase them without justification will result in the firm's being in violation of the Price Commission guidelines.

On Books

Assistant Atty. Gen. Ralph Gillan argued that the law under which the prices are set had been on the books for sometime and that Safeway had waited until the "day before the act is to go into effect to attempt to get a restraining order."

Lincoln attorney Herman Ginsburg, who said he was appearing as a friend of the court as counsel for Robert's Dairy, argued that the temporary restraining order or injunction should not be issued because there existed no emergency or discrimination "because everybody else is in the same position."

He said Safeway had known for sometime that the act was passed and had been invited to present testimony "but chose not to do it."

Indira Gandhi Makes Speech

. . . Parliament Cheers

New Delhi (AP)—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told Parliament Saturday that Pakistan had declared war on India.

The prime minister, going before Parliament for formal approval for a state of emergency throughout India, did not say in what form the Pakistani war proclamation had come.

However, United News of India, in a dispatch from the Indian border town of Julundur, said the Pakistani declaration had been published in an extraordinary gazette issued in Islamabad. It quoted Pakistan radio reports.

Both countries acknowledged that they were locked in battle for the past 12 hours.

India and Pakistan had fought two previous wars—in 1948 and 1965—without any formal declarations.

'Attacks Repulsed'

In New Delhi, a government spokesman said Pakistani air attacks on northwestern airfields had continued throughout the night but had been repulsed.

In her address, Mrs. Gandhi said the international community seemed paralyzed in its efforts to end civil strife in East Pakistan, which ultimately led to the confrontation between India and Pakistan.

"We repeatedly drew the attention of the world to this annihilation of a whole people and to the menace to our security," she said.

"Everywhere the people showed sympathy and understanding for the economic and other problems and the danger to India."

"But the governments seemed morally and politically paralyzed. Belated efforts to persuade the Islamabad regime to take some step which would lead to a lasting solution fell on deaf ears."

Regret Expressed

The prime minister, who was loudly cheered as she entered the Parliament chamber, expressed regret that the subcontinent had been plunged into war.

"Our feeling is one of regret that Pakistan did not desist from the ultimate folly and sorrow," she said. "While the greatest need of this subcontinent is development, the peoples of India and Pakistan have been pushed into war."

"My colleagues and I were all of one mind—united in our resolve—that the nation's freedom should be defended and unanimous that the aggressor should be beaten back. I am sure the same sense of solidarity will mark our work in difficult days ahead."

"We have stood for peace, but peace itself has to be defended," Mrs. Gandhi added. "We are fighting to safeguard our territorial integrity and national honor. Above all, we are fighting for the cause of human freedom."

Appeal To Women

As she frequently does in her political speeches around the country, Mrs. Gandhi addressed a special appeal to the women of India.

"To the women of our country, I make a special appeal to save every possible grain and rupee, to avoid waste. The sacrifice of each of us will build the nation's strength and enduring power."

The prime minister categorically denied that India had launched any ground attack on West Pakistan, as alleged by the Pakistan government in justifying its aerial attacks that began Friday night.

November Jobless Rate, Wholesale Prices Rise

Washington (UPI)—Unemployment and wholesale prices both edged upward last month. Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson called the 6% jobless rate "unacceptable" and demanded that Congress stop stalling and cut taxes immediately.

Loss of full-time jobs among young white adults accounted for nearly all the .2% unemployment gain from the October rate of 5.8%, the government reported Friday. At the same time, the number of persons holding jobs reached an all-time high of 80,022,000.

Wholesale prices rose by .1% for the second consecutive month in November, chiefly because of higher costs of raw agricultural products such as fruits, vegetables and turkeys which were not covered by the price freeze that ended in mid-month.

But wholesale industrial commodities, which account for three-fourths of the government index and are a leading economic barometer, remained unchanged from October's prices after adjustment for seasonal factors.

Figured at an annual rate, wholesale prices dropped .8% in the three months ended in November, compared with a 4.6% rise for the six months preceding the wage-price freeze.

Herbert Stein, a member of the president's council of economic advisers, said the wholesale price figures for November showed that "we have achieved, by the freeze, a stop to inflation."

Although American job-holders exceeded 80 million for the first time in history, there still were 5.15 million unemployed last month, a seasonally adjusted increase of 212,000 over October.

AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland said this proved that "the president's policies have not even made a dent in America's worst economic problem—unemployment," which has fluctuated around 6% for a little more than a year.

"American workers—those unemployed or partially employed or facing layoffs—know that unemployment won't be ended by either the slogans about the 'new prosperity' or giant tax handouts to wealthy corporations," said Kirkland who called for heavy government public works spending to create jobs.

Hodgson said Nixon's tax cut requests, "still ensnared in a web of congressional maneuver" after three months, was the solution. "Perhaps more than words these unemployment figures dictate the need for immediate congressional action," he said.

Two East Seniors Keep Up Award-Winning Writing Way

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Keeping up a tradition that goes back the few years the school has been open, two Lincoln East High seniors are among the 850 young people nationwide who have been identified as outstanding students of English.

They are Pam Herbert, a winner, and Marguerite Boslaugh, a runner-up, in the 1972 achievement awards program of the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE).

The girls are the only Lincolniters represented among the six winners and runners-up from Nebraska. Their names will be sent to 2,700 colleges and universities recommending they be considered for scholarships and for admission with advanced standing.

Both girls, who say they've been writing about as long as they can remember, say they will probably attend the University of Nebraska next fall.

Pam, whose writing interests

Marguerite Boslaugh

Pam Herbert

range from free verse to fiction, says she will major in music. Marguerite, who prefers free verse and essays, says she is on her way to a major in mathematics.

Many Activities

Meanwhile, both find themselves busy with a myriad of activities.

Pam, who won "superior" ratings at the state music clinic this fall, is also busy with voice lessons and as a singing and guitar-playing sidekick to Rick Evans of the Zager and Evans musical duo.

Marguerite is president of the East High International Club, vice president of the Girl Scout senior planning board, a Sunday school teacher and a pep club squad leader.

To win their way into the ranks of the nation's best young writers for 1972, the girls first had to prove themselves in an East High contest that pitted that school's young creators against one another.

Then they submitted examples of their best writing, an autobiography, and a bit of impromptu writing for the national contest.

Like 'Real Thing'

The East High contest alone was "almost as bad as the real thing," said Marguerite, since it was based solely on impromptu writing ability.

Although neither sees herself with a career in writing, both plan to continue their creative efforts into the future.

"I'd love to" keep writing, said Pam.

Marguerite agreed, but said she has "the feeling it's going to be on my own time, rather than part of a job."

The two are continuing to build on a tradition that began at East with the 1969 contest. Starting then, and each year since, East High has had at least one winner or runnerup in the NCTE contest.

Panel Approves Six Contracts

Washington (AP) — The President's panel on construction pay Friday announced approval of six more contracts far exceeding the panel's guideline on wage raises.

The approved pacts, all negotiated before the wage freeze, contained pay raises ranging from 9.9% over 12 months for Philadelphia bricklayers to 56.2% over 24 months for Delaware plasterers.

The Pay Board's general guideline is that raises in post-freeze contracts may not exceed 5.5% a year unless special circumstances warrant. Old contracts may have raises rolled back if found to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with that guideline.

The construction panel, officially named the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee, also inadvertently signaled Friday that it had intended to approve virtually all remaining retroactive raises. On Thursday the Pay Board relieved the CISC of authority to approve any more retroactive raises after it found that roughly 450 of a possible 500 such raises were granted two weeks ago.

On Friday Labor Department public information officials first released, then swiftly retracted a printed list of 50 deferred increases approved a week earlier by the CISC. All but three would have taken effect during the wage-price freeze, and the remaining three were to have been effective a few days afterward.

A CISC source said that the committee already had notified interested parties of approval of the 50 retroactive increases but that it was reconsidering its action in light of Thursday's Pay Board action.

The approved pacts, besides the Philadelphia bricklayers and Delaware plasterers, included a 21.7% increase over 22 months for Fort Worth, Texas, sheet metal workers, a 20.4% increase over 24 months for Northern California teamsters, a 39.6% increase over 24 months for Philadelphia cement masons and a 24% increase over 24 months for the highest classification in a contract affecting operating engineers in Terre Haute, Ind.

Also approved was a 24-month contract for Philadelphia residential construction laborers containing increases of 28% for city workers and 31.3% for adjacent counties.

All six contracts have effective dates preceding the freeze and apparently provide for retroactive pay to cover raises during the freeze. There was no explanation of how this action squares with Thursday's Pay Board ruling that the Internal Revenue Service, not the CISC must approve retroactive increases for the freeze period. Construction committee spokesmen were unavailable for comment Friday as they had been the day before.

Golda 'Satisfied' With Nixon Talks

Washington (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Friday she is satisfied with her talks with President Nixon.

"There is definitely understanding here of our problems and that is the most one can ask from a friendly government," she said at a news conference.

Mrs. Meir declined to say whether she obtained any commitments that the United States will resume the delivery of Phantom airplanes to Israel.

Among the problems discussed Thursday with President Nixon and Secretary of State

William P. Rogers, she said, was the question of arms deliveries and specifically that of aircraft.

"I do not want to speak about it in public but hope that some of the misunderstandings were cleared," she said.

Reminded that the White House said Thursday it would not permit the military balance to shift against Israel, Mrs. Meir said "If the White House says that, I'm inclined to believe it."

Mrs. Meir restated the Israeli position that should Israel get more aircraft this would not disrupt the possibility of negotiations of a final peace agreement or of the opening of the Suez Canal.

"I hope it was understood that when we speak about the balance of power this is not something that can be weighed on an apothecary scale," she said. "Our neighbors would much more be inclined to resist to go to war if Israel is strong. But a weaker Israel is no inducement for peace."

Mrs. Meir challenged an allegation that Israel would be rigid in her position on talks with the Arabs. "I never agreed to it that we were not flexible," she said.

She said that direct talks between Israel and the Arabs would lead to the best answer to the Middle East problem but when the United States suggested going into indirect negotiations, "we said yes."

Landlords Must Justify Rental Hike To Tenants

Washington (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service ruled Friday that tenants may legally refuse to pay rents increased since the wage-price freeze ended Nov. 13 unless landlords open their books to prove the higher charges were justified.

The IRS, which enforces the post-freeze economic controls, advised landlords not to raise rents, even if it appears legal under price commission guidelines, "unless they keep complete records on rental practices and make the records available to tenants whose rents are to be increased."

Tax agents "will vigorously investigate alleged violations of rental guidelines and will take legal action whenever justified," the IRS said.

Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. told landlords last week to delay any rental increases until a special rent advisory board submits its guidelines for rent stabilization. The commission is expected to review and pass on those guidelines early next week.

Grayson said increases would have to be rolled back if they were out of line with the new guidelines. To justify higher rents, the IRS said, landlords must show tenants records "showing the base for the units and the reason for any increase between the base price and the maximum price he was allowed to charge during the freeze."

So far under post-freeze controls, commercial and industrial rents are exempt but most residential rents remain frozen. The Price Commission has allowed some residential rent increases, including cases where at least 10% of similar apartments in the same building were getting a higher rent in the 30 days prior to Aug. 15 when the freeze was imposed.

Commission Approves Price Hike For MoPar

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission granted the MoPar division of the Chrysler Corp. a 3.7% price increase on auto parts Friday.

The approval increase was down from the 4.4% Chrysler requested. The commission said this reflected a downward adjustment for anticipated fuel and freight costs, and would increase total corporation revenue less than one one-hundredth of 1%.

Six other increases were granted, bringing to 32 the number granted under Phase 2 of President Nixon's new Economic Policy.

Deere and Co. was permitted to raise prices 4.6% on agricultural and industrial tractors and equipment and lawn and garden equipment and parts.

Levi Strauss Co. was granted a 2.84% increase on selected cotton products.

The New York Times won approval of a 4.5% increase in some advertising rates.

A number of new requests for increases included: The New York News, Inc., 8.8% for newspapers; Gannett Co. Inc., 5.5% for newspaper print and advertising; Reading Co., 10% for rail fares; Allied Chemical Corp., 15.65% for soda ash; The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, 8% for group health and accident insurance; Alberto-Culver Co., 11.1% for 10-5 shampoo; and Gulf & Western Industries, from 3.33 to 7.56% for various industrial products.

Dollar Sinks To New Lows After British Support Ends

London (AP) — The dollar fell to new lows on European exchanges Friday on the heels of a British decision to stop supporting it.

The Bank of England, and other government banks in Europe, had been buying dollars by the million to keep values from plummeting drastically. A rush to unload dollars began on Thursday as word spread that the United States might agree to a devaluation in terms of gold.

The Bank of England gave no explanation for its decision.

The break came in mid-afternoon and the slump quickly spread to other European exchanges.

In London, the dollar dropped from 40.10 pence to 40.02 in minutes. That was the lowest level the dollar has reached in the international monetary crisis unleashed Aug. 15 by President Nixon's economic program.

The rate represented an upward revaluation of the pound sterling of 4.09% from its previous parity of $2.40.

Dealers said the dollar would probably have gone much lower if the break had come at midweek.

The West German state bank calculated that world currencies have increased in value against the dollar by an average of 5.1% since May 1970, when the Canadian dollar was first set free to find its true level in the open market.

The U.S. dollar has sagged steadily since Tuesday when Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and the nine other finance ministers in the "Group of Ten" richest non-Communist nations began discussing an early devaluation of the dollar.

The London exchange opened calmly and there was some evidence that the Bank of England was doing some support buying to steady the dollar rate at 40.10 pence.

Dealers said trading was on a small scale until it became evident the bank had stopped buying. Then came a wave of selling. But as the afternoon wore on, it eased — and the dollar began climbing off the floor to reach 40.04 pence, or $2.4974 for one pound.

In Paris, the Bank of France was believed to have continued to support the dollar throughout and it improved slightly in the two-tier French market. There was no indication how many dollars the state bank was forced to absorb.

New York Times News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service
New Delhi — India and Pakistan declared Saturday that a full-scale war had begun between them. Each blamed the other. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, citing "the wanton and unprovoked aggression of Pakistan" in a post-midnight speech, said that it "would be decisively and finally repelled." (More On Page 1.)

'Some Differences' Reported
Washington — Premier Golda Meir, ending talks in Washington, said there were still "some differences of opinion" between her country and the United States. (More On Page 3.)

Retaliatory Raids Ordered
Rawalpindi, Pakistan — Pakistan, asserting that Indian troops had attacked at least four points along the West Pakistan border, ordered her air force and army to penetrate India as deeply as possible. A spokesman said that the air force had retaliated for the attacks with bombing raids on at least seven Indian air fields.

India, Pakistan Say Full Scale War Has Started

Widespread Fighting Reported
New Delhi — Pakistan said Indian troops had attacked various points along the border of West Pakistan and added that Pakistani planes had bombed four Indian airfields. As Radio Pakistan described the situation as confused, western diplomats received unconfirmed reports of widespread fighting.

Private Meetings Held
United Nations, N.Y. — All the members of the United Nations Security Council other than the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and China met privately to discuss the crisis in lieu of a formal request for a council meeting.

Enforcement Measures Asked
United Nations, N.Y. — Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad of Egypt, opening the United Nations General Assembly debate on the Middle East, called on the U.N. to take "enforcement measures" — meaning sanctions — against Israel to compel her to withdraw from Arab territory occupied in 1967.

Margin Requirement Dropped
Washington — Citing a recent decline in the amount of outstanding stock-credit, the Federal Reserve Board reduced the margin requirement on stock purchases — the minimum down payment needed to buy stock — from 65 to 55%. The new margin, effective Monday, is the lowest level since November, 1963.

Space Agreement Close
Moscow — Soviet and American space experts were close to an agreement on compatible systems that would allow spacecraft of both nations to link up with each other in orbit, the American Embassy in Moscow said. An agreement on the subject was said to be likely to lead to a joint Soviet-American manned space flight. (More On Page 2.)

Tenants Can Halt Rent
Washington — Tenants can legally withhold rent increases if their landlords refuse to produce the records justifying the increases, the Internal Revenue Service rules. Landlords were also cautioned in an unusual warning, that the IRS would "vigorously investigate" violations of the guidelines on rents. (More On Page 3.)

Jobless Rate Edges Up
Washington — The Labor Department reported a November unemployment rate of 6%, up from 5.8% in October. The rate has remained around 6% for a year. A small rise in wholesale prices last month — one-tenth of one per cent — was also reported. That rise was due entirely to rises in items exempt from price controls. (More On Page 1.)

Nixon Preparing Budget
Key Biscayne, Fla. — President Nixon will submit a budget for the 1973 fiscal year containing a "full employment balance," the White House said. The decision means federal spending for that year will be about $250 billion and that any new spending proposals by the president are unlikely. The current budget is also a "full employment" budget.

Hijacker Overpowered After Tense Afternoon

The New York Times

Orly, France — An armed 28-year-old Frenchman, who for seven hours took over and terrorized a Pakistani airliner in the name of the autonomy movement for East Pakistan, or Bangla Desh, was overpowered and seized by police after a struggle in the cockpit Friday.

A policeman was slightly wounded by the single shot fired from the hijacker's pistol. The crew of six and the 15 passengers still aboard during the violent denouement of a tense afternoon were unhurt.

The hijacker was identified as Jean Kay by Michel Aurillac, prefect of the Essonne Department in which the Paris International Airport is situated. Kay was "kicked about a bit in the scuffle," according to Aurillac, but not injured. He was undergoing interrogation here Friday night.

Aurillac, who said he was charged by the interior ministry with the task of capturing the hijacker without bloodshed, said in an interview minutes after the capture that he did not think he had taken too great a risk. He said: "If we had let him leave we would have a plane hijacked here once a week."

In order to gain time in which to organize Kay's capture, the police pretended to accede to his conditions for the safety of the plane and the 21 other persons aboard. The hijacker's conditions were that France would load 20 tons of medical supplies for the refugees from East Pakistan aboard and allow the plane to leave.

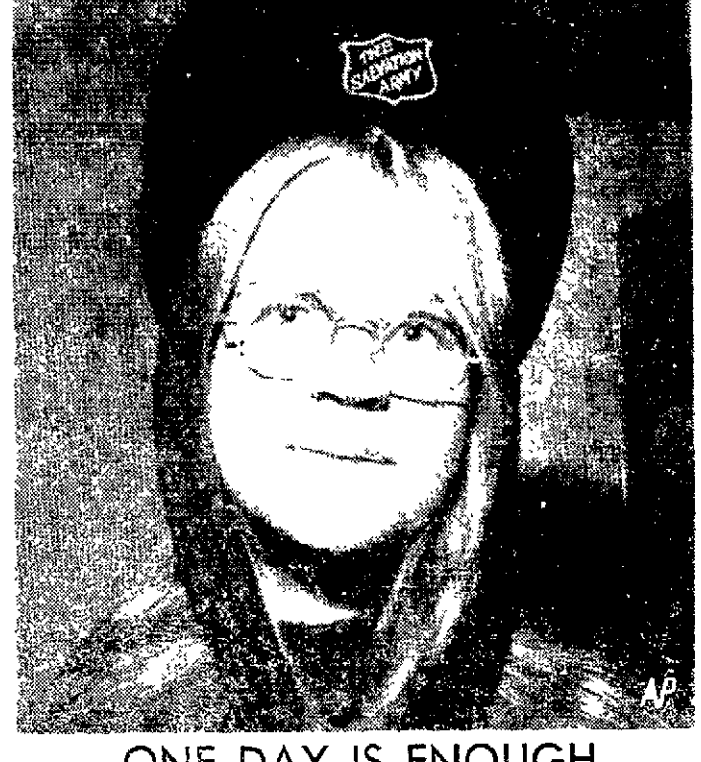

Otherwise, Kay threatened to blow up the plane. He re-forced his threat, according to a passenger, Andre Peyresaupe, by never letting out of his hand a small bag from which pieces of electric wire protruded. It was found to contain two dictionaries and a bible.

Shortly after 5 p.m. a panel truck drove alongside and two men, one carrying a Red Cross flag, got out. The rear door was opened for the first time, and a hostess and a male crew member talked with the men. Then a stair ramp was rolled up and seven passengers, including a young child, disembarked.

While the loading of the medicines was carried out slowly, to try the hijacker's patience, authorities obtained from him the concession to allow another crew of "freight handlers" to join the maximum of four he had specified earlier. Four disguised policemen climbed aboard.

At a prearranged moment two more burst into the front of the plane through a trapdoor in its belly, and the two assault teams jumped on Kay from front and rear. He lived one shot before being subdued.

ONE DAY IS ENOUGH
Susan Yoh, 20, quit her job as a Salvation Army bell-ringer after only one day. When a young man stole her little red pot outside a Pontiac, Mich., shopping center, Miss Yoh ran after him. "I didn't know what else to do." The thief's getaway car knocked her down and ran over her stomach, leaving a track mark. Suffering only bruises and in good spirits, she vowed to quit bell ringing. "I'm not even a Christian. I was only in it for the money. I was working for them for $1.60 an hour." The commander of the Pontiac Salvation Army, Maj. W. R. Wilkins, said this was the first time a kettle had been stolen.

Medici Says He Wants To Step Down

Brasilia (UPI) — President Emilio Garrastazu Medici, in an emotion-charged birthday party, said Friday he wanted to step out of office "as soon as possible" because of the heavy workload involved. Medici, who will be 66 Saturday, did not set any specific date for stepping down. He made it clear, however, he did not like the job. "The load of office is heavy," he said. The Congress elected Medici to the presidency in October, 1964. His term of office normally would expire in March 1974.

United States And The Soviet Union Expected To Sign Space Agreement

The New York Times

Moscow — The United States Embassy here announced Friday that the United States and the Soviet Union were expected to sign a space agreement within the next two months on the development of a joint system of rendezvous and docking of spacecraft.

Such an accord would ultimately lead to a joint manned space mission, involving linkup in orbit around the Earth to test the technical system being developed.

These prospects for increased Soviet-American collaboration in space emerged from meetings held here this week between representatives of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

The news appeared to fit into a pattern of tentative accords being discussed at a variety of levels in an improved political climate leading up to President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union next May.

The meetings of technical space experts, scheduled to end Monday, are the third in a series under a preliminary agreement signed in October, 1970, to discuss the development of compatible rendezvous and docking systems for spacecraft.

A brief statement released by the United States Embassy suggested that significant gains had been made in the current talks between NASA representatives led by Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, and the Soviet group, headed by Boris N. Petrov.

It could not be determined whether such an accord would limit itself to the technical aspects of the joint space effort or would set at least a tentative time for the proposed test mission.

In view of the technical problems and the secrecy that still surrounds the Soviet space program, it was not expected that a joint rendezvous and docking exercise could take place before the late 1970's. By that time, NASA expects to have a space station in orbit around the Earth similar to or larger than the Soviet station Salyut, which circled the Earth for six months this year before burning up in the lower atmosphere.

Butz Says Government Will Start Buying Corn

Washington (UPI) — Acting quickly to quell farm belt unrest over low grain prices, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced Friday the government would soon start buying corn on the open market.

He told UPI later he hoped the combination of government purchases and an end to the dock strikes could push the price farmers receive for their corn "to or above" the $1.05 a bushel level of average government price support loans.

In mid-November, farmers were getting only 97.6 cents a bushel in an open grain market depressed by record harvests that sent prices plunging. Butz hinted he might take other steps to shore up prices if his initial moves didn't work.

Farm bloc leaders in Congress who had fought Butz's nomination on the ground he was unsympathetic with the farmers' plight praised his move less than 24 hours after he was sworn in.

The Agriculture Department said the specific amount of corn to be bought at market prices was left open. First bids will be received Dec. 10 for acceptance Dec. 13.

"The purchase operation will firm up farm prices and will provide reserve stocks to meet domestic requirements during periods of short supply," a department statement said.

Butz said the corn purchase — which had been demanded earlier by farm bloc lawmakers but resisted by the Agricultural Department under former Secretary Clifford M. Hardin — was prompted by the record 55 billion bushel 1971 corn crop.

Butz's move appeared to be designed partly to head off a push by House farm bloc lawmakers, mostly Democrats, for a bill which would require the government to purchase up to 900 million bushels of feed grain and 300 million bushels of wheat for storage in a "national reserve."

The House Rules Committee is scheduled to decide Monday whether to send that bill to the House floor over the opposition of GOP farm leaders.

Butz said preliminary reports show nearly 240 million bushels of 1971 corn were put under loan — thus holding it off the market — through Nov. 26. This is more than 2 1/2 times the previous record volume of corn put into the support loan program in any similar period.

Ortiz's Murder Conviction Is Upheld By Supreme Court

By United Press International
The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday upheld the Buffalo County District Court first degree murder conviction of Lawrence J. Ortiz of Omaha.

Ortiz appealed the conviction, which stemmed from the death of Charollette Elaine Whittington, on the grounds the evidence used to convict him was insufficient.

"The evidence is circumstantial for the most part, but we believe it is sufficient to sustain the verdict," said the high court.

Ortiz had said the last time he saw Miss Whittington was Aug. 29, 1970. They were staying in a Lincoln motel and had been out with friends.

He had contended she made a phone call on their way back to the motel that night in an attempt to purchase drugs. He said during the trial that later some unidentified men picked her up, never to be seen by him again.

Her body, with her hands cut off, was found a few days later in a burning field adjacent to the Platte River 15 miles west of Kearney, where she had relatives.

Ortiz told the trial court Miss Whittington was a narcotics addict and an "informer who was in trouble with unspecified black people in Omaha, and afraid of reprisals," the high court noted.

He had said that after she did not return to the motel by the next morning, he began a search, which took him to the vicinity of where the body was later found.

The high court said, however, his story is not "conducive" to belief, and also noted his car, which he later sold, was found to have bloodstains and human hair matching those of the dead woman.

"The defendant's story of Charollette's leaving with strangers is completely uncorroborated," the high court said. "Had the strangers killed her, they would have had to transport her body to the spot where it was found."

If he had checked over his car and found the blood stains, the court added, but he didn't.

The court also said it appears all the elements of first degree murder were present. It said she was beaten and when found, physicians said her body was completely drained of blood, which indicated she bled to death when her hands were severed.

The severing of the hands was of necessity a deliberate and premeditated act when performed while Charollette was still alive, although probably unconscious, may well have been deemed by the jury as intended to bring about her death," the high court said.

In other decisions, the court: —Upheld the Sarpy County District Court conviction of Jack Smith for possession of marijuana.

—Upheld the ruling of the Lancaster County District Court in a damage suit involving Francis E. Brander and Eagle Raceways Inc. of Lincoln.

—Upheld the Lincoln County District Court's conviction of Lynn Moore for issuance of a no account check.

—Upheld the Douglas County Juvenile Court's termination of parental custody of Stacy and Sherry Lynn Namie. The court had taken them away from Karen Sue Namie for neglect.

—Upheld the Stanton County District Court's ruling in a divorce case involving Lida Mae and George F. Schuman.

—Upheld the Lancaster County District Court's conviction of Michael Morson for concealing a stolen motorcycle with intent to defraud the owner.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Waste Deplored In Housing For Senior Citizens

By ROBERT PETERSON
There's a lot of waste in elder housing. Over the years I've visited dozens of group housing projects erected by well-meaning organizations. Sometimes the funds available are spent in providing basic housing for many.

The ball starts rolling when a committee of busy, well-intentioned citizens consults with assorted architects and retirement experts. Another committee tours homes which have been built by other groups. Another committee charts a fund-raising campaign. And press releases soon proclaim plans to create, "One of the nation's finest residences for the aged."

In their attempt to live up to this announcement—and compete with homes created by rival groups—they sometimes create a building whose unusual design and gadgetry hike construction costs and sharply reduce the number of elders who can be accommodated.

I visited such a home the other day, which shall be nameless so as to spare the feelings of those who contributed money for its construction. It was built as a haven for aged, low-income members of an occupational group, and is of spectacular design with modernistic, peaked roofs and lots of glass. It is on one level and its 32,000 square feet of floor space sprawl over a pastoral hillside in a quiet suburb 20 miles from the bright lights of the city. Its guest rooms, dining room and lobby are as luxurious as those you'll find in any first-class resort hotel.

It's a beauty, all right. But its tragedy is that it cost more than $800,000 and accommodates a maximum of only 48 people. And at least one guest told me she simply did not feel at home in such sleek, shiny and spacious quarters.

A contractor friend tells me that for this amount of money they could have erected a substantial structure of conventional design which would have provided twice as many rooms and baths—plus dining and public rooms.

As I was about to leave this splendid residence, I got to talking with an old gentleman who said he was 88 and had just stopped for a visit. "I'm eligible to live here," he volunteered, "but I'd much rather have any rundown one-room apartment in the heart of town where I can be independent, cook my own meals and be close to the action."

Needs for group housing among our mushrooming elders are so great that we should cease designing costly, custom-built residences and concentrate instead on providing as many moderate-priced housing units of conventional, standardized design as possible.

And we should cease putting these residences out in the sticks. Older people may be along in years, but they are essentially the same people they were in previous years. In most cases they find far greater stimulation and satisfaction in the hum of human traffic than in the hushed solitude of a pastoral setting.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

There is a good chance we could be wrong but the talk this week in the Budget Committee of the Legislature about budgeting procedures left us pretty cold. It seems that every year someone comes along with a fancy new way of setting down the figures, all of which then boils down to skimpy appropriations.

Now, the committee, thanks to Department of Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske, is talking about performance budgets rather than program budgets and "measured work loads." Committee Chairman Richard Marvel has cheered such talk, saying that agencies have to spell out what they intend to do with their money.

For instance, he said, it is not enough for the University of Nebraska simply to say that it needs so much money for education. Rather, it must say exactly the number of teachers such an appropriation would train.

What surprises us is that things might have been any different in the recent past than Marvel and Lieske think they should be now. We have never known of any agency or state government that simply asks for a lump sum of money to pursue vague objectives.

Every appropriation made by the Legislature has been on an item-by-item basis, or at least by categories that have been clearly understood. And we have never failed to seek an explanation of fund requests from an agency when they have been asked. There just isn't any state agency, including the university, that is asking for money it cannot fully support with facts.

These facts include the details of what the money is going to be spent for—whether it is to finance watershed planning, pay health inspectors, teach a new course at the university or what-have-you.

We would like to know what state agency has asked DAS or the Budget Committee for a big lump of money just to play around with. What we fear is that all the talk about new budget procedures is just another way of clamping down on spending, another reason for denying what agencies ask for.

In past years, this has been an annual event—the changing of procedures in an effort to satisfy someone's own idea of what the correct procedure is. We talk about line item appropriations, about program budgeting, about measured work loads, etc.

In the end, they all boil down to one thing—what the money is being spent for. Why not a budget that is just that simple, one that says what the money is going to be spent for? Why do we have to go around constantly coining new terms and toying with procedures until nobody knows what anybody is talking about?

Sometimes we wonder if people in authority are not trying to convince the public more of their own expertise than anything else. Our indulgence in semantics at the state level is becoming about as bad as it is at the federal level.

Half the time you can't tell what federal officials are talking about because they dream up their own words to fit all sorts of occasions, if not to more or less hide what are their real intentions. This also makes comparisons very hard to come by.

In Nebraska, we are constantly changing the appropriations system in one way or another. Thus, when you try to compare the new year's budget with that of the old year, you end up with a limited basis of comparison.

We do this when we change the methods within agencies and when we change responsibilities as between agencies, as was done to some degree in this year's state budget by the governor's office. We have nothing against modern and meaningful accounting procedures but we are a little tired of them constantly changing.

We are a little tired, too, of insinuations that state agencies don't know what they are spending their money for and are recklessly requesting funds without adequate explanation of them. Our own opinion is that if DAS and the Budget Committee do not know the purpose of requests after all the time they spend with the agencies, then they just are not very smart.

This kind of thing erodes public confidence in the administrative branch of government and we wonder if some of it is not done for the sake of legislative political profit at the expense of administration.

Panama The Route For Bulk Of Drugs

WASHINGTON — Panama, where Sir Francis Drake and Sir Henry Morgan once trafficked in pirate gold, has now become "a conduit through which vast amounts of illicit drugs are funneled to the U.S."

This disquieting news is contained in a confidential report to Congress from the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

In undiplomatic language, the report suggests that "apathy, ignorance and/or collusion" in the Panamanian government may be to blame.

The blunt report, submitted by Narcotics Director John Ingersoll to Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., for the upcoming of his House Panama Canal subcommittee, states that "one-twelfth of the heroin and cocaine entering the U.S. comes through Panama."

This has made Panama "one of the most significant countries for the transshipment of narcotic drugs to the U.S." The report indicates that the illicit drugs are routed through Panama from South America, Europe and even Asia.

Here's how the smugglers operate:

From Panama's 100 airfields, light planes skip from country to country into the U.S. with cargoes of cocaine, heroin and hashish.

The tiny country's two major ports and ten minor harbors are havens for powerboats and trawlers which pack dope in hidden holds.

Panama's 600 registered ships, all manned by foreign crews, offer possibilities for drug smuggling as varied as the world's multiple dialects.

Four seizures alone netted narcotics agents a hefty 641 pounds of heroin, enough to bring narcotic bliss to half the addicts in New York City. The report recalls, as another example, that "the son of a Panamanian ambassador and his bodyguard were arrested attempting to smuggle 156 pounds of heroin into John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York."

Concludes the report sharply: "Panama has not and is not giving sufficient attention to narcotics enforcement activities."

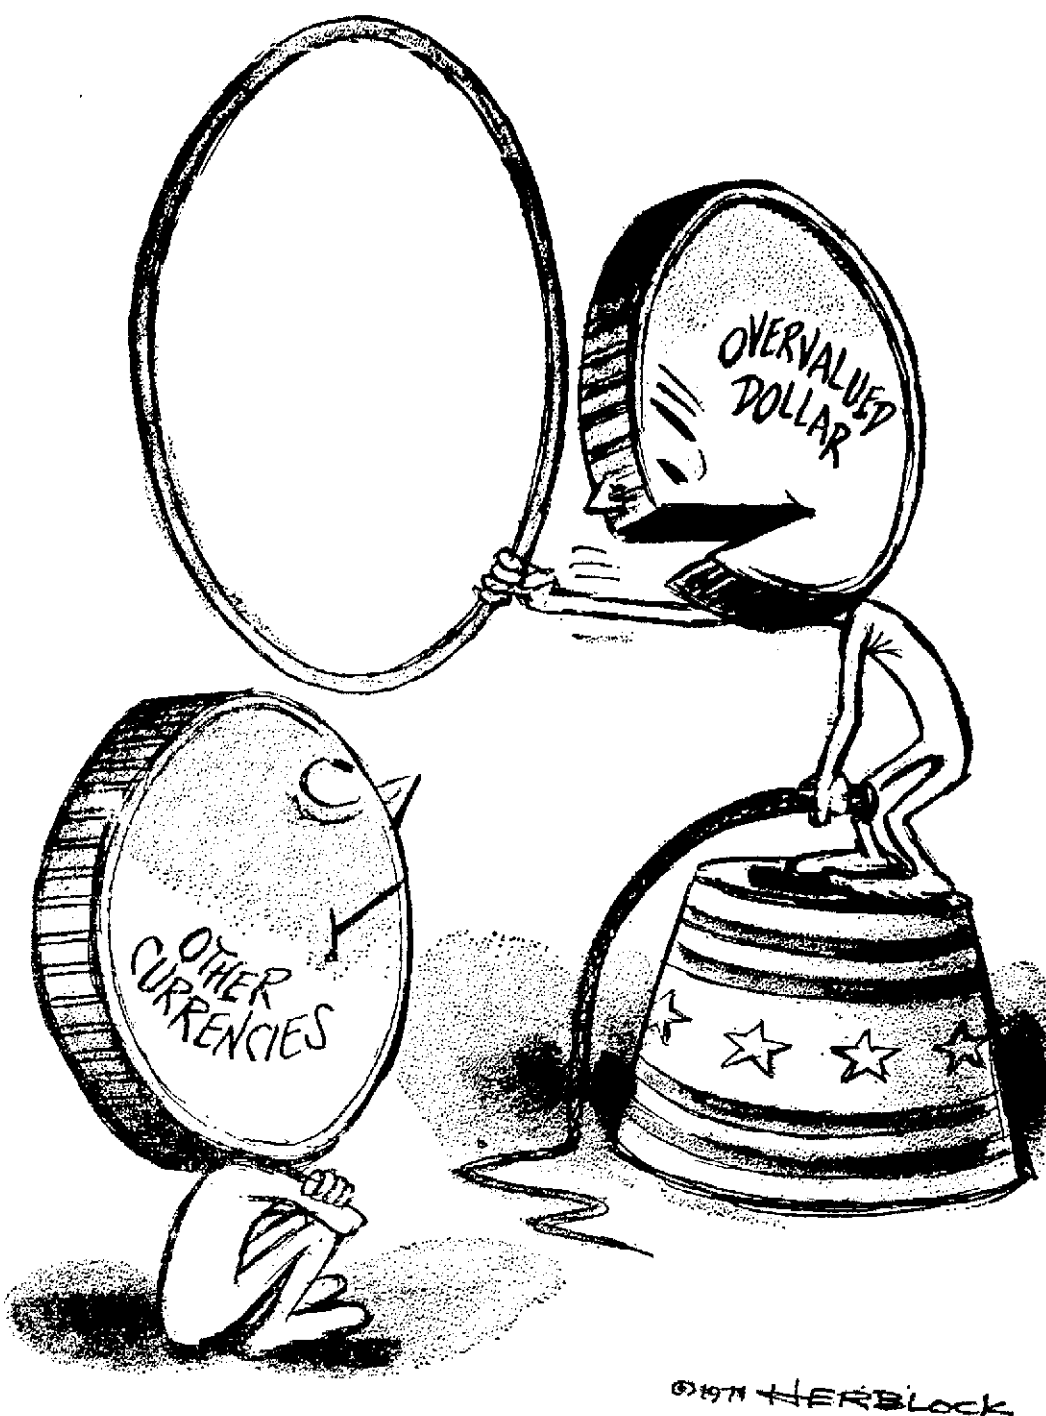

Lobbyists for the Nixon administration swarm over Capitol Hill in flagrant disregard of the law. Before an important Senate vote, they often operate right out of Vice President Agnew's office a few steps from the Senate floor.

This puts them in a strategic location to buttonhole senators on their way to vote. More than a dozen administration lobbyists patrolled the Senate corridors and cloakrooms, for example, during the foreign aid debate.

Yet the law states explicitly that no appropriated funds may be used "to influence in any manner a member of Congress, to favor or oppose, by vote or otherwise, any legislation or appropriation by Congress."

Any government employee who violates this law is supposed to be "removed from office or employment" and "fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both."

'Maybe I Can Come Down A Little'

A New Hickel

When 44 members of the board of directors vote against you, it doesn't exactly inspire confidence. But President Nixon held more stock and his nomination of Earl Butz as secretary of Agriculture was approved by a narrow seven vote margin.

Dr. Butz replied to the Senate vote Thursday with a pledge to "work vigorously to protect and preserve the family farm system" and he gave assurances of support for anti-hunger programs. Democrats had charged Butz would favor corporate agribusiness interests over family farmers and show little sympathy for programs to feed the hungry.

Nixon and his supporters in the Senate have taken a gamble on Butz. Only four Republicans deserted the President: Cook and Cooper of Kentucky, Miller of Iowa and Young of North Dakota. Although less than enthusiastic, Republican Sens. James Pearson of Kansas and Carl Curtis of Nebraska — both up for re-election next year — voted for Butz and the possibility he might be a drag on those re-election efforts. It is likely that all of the contenders for the Democratic nomination to oppose Curtis will assail his vote for confirmation. Lincolnite Donald Ferguson did so directly on the heels of the roll call.

Curtis said he voted for Butz because the new secretary had promised him in a letter that he would take immediate action to raise the price of corn and feed grains and that if he found he lacked authority to act, he would ask Congress for new laws.

And already, GOP spokesmen are wishfully drawing a parallel between Butz and former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel. When the Alaskan was nominated to the Cabinet, he was assailed by opponents as a tool of vested interests and despoilers of the environment. He turned out to be a champion of environmental causes and he left office admired by those who once scorned him.

Republicans worried over a slippage of Nixon and GOP support in the corn belt hope the same for Dr. Butz, that his prior statements on family as opposed to corporate farming will be seen as cases of mistaken interpretation. It will take more than a metamorphosis of Butz' image to keep the corn belt Nixon country, however. Much of it will revolve on a change in income figures.

Nixon Woos Youth, Elderly

While President Nixon took chances with the farm vote, he spent considerable time this week wooing the very young voters and the elderly.

In an address to the week-long White House Conference on Aging, the President promised to seek legislation that would ease the property tax burden on older Americans and he pledged to work for a minimum annual income for older people and to press for programs to reverse the "growing sense of isolation and insecurity" among the elderly.

In acknowledgement of the powerful impact the 18-year-old vote amendment may have on presidential politics, Nixon told the 50th National 4-H Congress in Chicago Wednesday that young America had turned "from its stormy night of recent years into what I believe will be a bright new morning." Youth is now moving toward "full partnership" in the governing of the nation, he said.

That November, 1972, is much on his

Japan Has Made Remarkable 30-Year Progress; Pacific Peace Needs Now Need To Be Shared

WASHINGTON — It is now nearly 30 years since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and Washington and Tokyo are fussing at each other again over money and trade.

Looking back over this first postwar generation, both countries have behaved very well, and have established a relationship that should contribute to the peace and well-being of the world in the last 30 years of the century.

Optimism is out of fashion these days, and the latest gloomy headline seems to overwhelm the slow and painful achievements of a whole era, but in the long history of warfare between nations, it is hard to find anything comparable to the generosity of the victors and the spectacular recovery of the vanquished in the 30 years since the end of that savage and tragic war.

One of the amiable characteristics of the American people is that they have no memory. They are not haters. They don't nurse their grudges. It must be a surprise to most readers even to be reminded that Dec. 7 is the 30th anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack, for there is no vengeful spirit in this country toward the Japanese people.

The Japanese record since the war is even more remarkable. After all, it is easier for us to be generous in victory than for the Japanese to be patient, industrious, and triumphant in defeat. And this is precisely what the Japanese nation has done. Stripped of its territorial conquests, squeezed back with its 100 million people into its limited island space, deprived of natural resources, surrounded by the giants, America, China and the Soviet Union, it has rescued its national sovereignty and integrity, and by almost unimaginable gifts of intelligence, industry, and cooperation, it has become the third industrial nation in the world, and certainly the most imaginative, and cooperative human society in the family of nations in the modern world.

It is only when you look at a few simple symbolic facts that you begin to understand the magnitude of the Japanese achievement. They had to take their national life by the throat. They had to control not only industrial and commercial life, but personal life at its most intimate level.

Just as they had too many people, so they had too few raw materials — no minerals to speak of, and no fuel to process them. Yet they created a river of oil tankers from the Middle East — one every 50 miles every hour of the day — and a flood of freighters, with the coal and steel they do not have at home.

Washington and Tokyo are arguing with one another now, not because they have failed in their relations over the period since the war, but because they have succeeded beyond the dreams of either capital. Now the problem is to get a successful and competitive Japan to share the common burdens of maintaining peace in the Pacific basin without reviving her militaristic tradition, without destroying her economic progress, and without destroying her ambitions to be on good terms, not only with the United States, but with the other two major powers in the Pacific, China, and the Soviet Union.

It is a very delicate operation, and President Nixon's voyage to Peking in February illustrates the challenge. For it used to be thought that Japan, close to China and the United States, might be able to bring Washington and Peking

ERNEST E. JUST

They Had A Dream

At the turn of the century, black men found few opportunities in the world of pure science. A few, however, surmounted racial barriers and made their mark.

One was Dr. Ernest E. Just, a zoologist who achieved distinction as a teacher and research scientist. He spent his life attempting to unravel the mysteries of cell development, particularly in marine animals.

Just was a recognized authority in this field and the author of more than 60 scientific papers and two books on the subject. His research helped to lay a foundation for later cancer research.

He was elected vice president of the American Society of Zoologists and was appointed to the governing board of the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., where he conducted most of his research on a part-time basis.

But the opportunity he longed for, a staff position at a major university or research institute, never came and he died without realizing his full potential.

***

Just was born in Charleston, S.C., in 1883. His father died when he was four, leaving his mother, a schoolteacher, with the responsibility of raising three children.

At the age of 17, he left South Carolina and made his way to Meriden, N.H., to attend Kimball Academy, a school he had read about in a religious newspaper. Just became editor of the school paper, president of the debating society and finished four years of work in three years, graduating with honors.

He enrolled at Dartmouth College in 1903, majored in biology and graduated magna cum laude four years later. Then he joined the faculty of Howard University, a small Negro institution in Washington, D.C.

In 1909, Just, in his spare time, began graduate studies at Woods Hole under Dr. Frank R. Lillie, head of the zoology department at the University of Chicago.

It took him until 1916 to earn his doctor's degree. During that period, Just became Lillie's friend and research assistant, married, was appointed head of Howard's zoology department and found time to author six scientific papers.

These led in 1915 to his being named the first recipient of the Springarn Medal for outstanding contributions by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

After receiving his degree from the University of Chicago, Just remained in his teaching post at Howard and spent his summers in research at Woods Hole where he became a member of the governing board. He also was associate editor of several prestigious scientific journals.

But no offers of a research post came his way and Just became increasingly embittered. In 1930, he began a self-imposed exile, conducting his research under foundation grants at institutes in Berlin, Paris and Naples.

When Just died in 1941, Dr. Lillie summed up his friend's plight in an obituary published in Science, a scholarly journal Lillie wrote:

"An element of tragedy ran through all of Just's scientific career due to limitations imposed by being a Negro in America, to which he could make no lasting psychological adjustment in spite of earnest efforts on his part.

"The numerous grants for research did not compensate for failure to receive an appointment in one of the large institutes. He felt this as a social stigma, and hence unjust to a scientist of his recognized standing."

Pointing out that European scientists had welcomed him with "universal kindness, Lillie added:

"That a man of his ability, scientific devotion . . . should have been warped in the land of his birth must remain a matter of regret."

No Permanent Refuge From World

NANTUCKET, Mass. — This was the kind of day to make a city dweller want to chuck it all and move back to nature.

Whitecaps played like froth on Nantucket Sound and a fresh cold wind exhilarated the brain. The air was so clear that from the hills behind Dionis Beach a reasonably sharp eye could spot the white lighthouse on great point; and brilliant autumn sunlight fell with particular radiance on the browns and golds of the moors.

This was said to be a busier holiday season than usual on this summer island, but you couldn't easily tell it in Nantucket town, where most of the stores are closed for the season and the usual benchsitters on main street braved the cold only at midday.

Most houses are shuttered for the winter, and only a few small craft are afloat in the harbor: the scallopers go daily to their chilly labors, but most boats in the island fleet are stacked for the winter like cars on a ferry inside the boatyard warehouses — where in winter hibernation even the sleekest sailboats look lumpy and forlorn.

But the quiet streets, the light on the moors, the wind whistling in the eaves, the sense here — at least in winter — that the clanging urban world is far away, are siren lures, delusive and deceitful. The city-dweller, hankering to make his weekend visit an exile, knows that in his bones.

Even the act of fleeing — and even for no longer than a week or a month — the crowded streets, the noise, the smells, the animosities of the city, tends merely to transfer all these unpleasanties elsewhere.

Nantucket with its summer traffic jams and its building boom and its law-and-order crackdowns on "hippies" is a fairly good example; and most of us can cite one or more retreats that used to be great before everyone else discovered them.

More importantly, who and what is being fled from? The blacks, of course, the poor and the pushy, although more often the fleeing convince even themselves that it is really the inconvenience, the killing pace, and the joylessness of city life that impelled them to the hills, or the shore, or the woods.

Sometimes that is actually true. But whether it is or not, those who long to return to nature and the ways of a quieter past really are trying to escape the human race.

There is, unfortunately, only one way to do that, which few elect. A quiet weekend on Nantucket is undoubtedly good for the soul, and a summer or a winter probably would be that much better. Permanently transplanting oneself to the wilderness, for those who can stick it, obviously has its attractions. But even the latter is standing aside from, rather than surely escaping, humankind. Like the hero of Conrad's "Victory," one can choose to "look on — make no sound;" but neither he nor anyone could thereby guarantee that the world of men would not reach out anyway, to claim its own.

Even in a time when the "commune" has achieved new popularity, of course, only a relatively small number of people are actively seeking to get completely away from the world. The more common impulse is the weekend house, and even more familiar is the ritual move from city to suburb. That in turn has spawned the reverse form of the same impulse — the efforts of suburban or once-suburban communities to exclude the newcomer. It is as if they wished to fix themselves forever in time, space and society, rather like one of the restored villages — Williamsburg or old Salem — that in timeless unreality stand as monuments to the dead past.

As populations grow and seethe, as technology alters ethics and customs, and both government and the old disciplinary institutions — churches, corporations, universities — show themselves unable or unwilling to cope with the change, it is no wonder and scarcely reprehensible that this kind of escapism should be rampant. But the escapist dream of those who flee the city and barricade their communities probably will be, in the end, as deceitful as that of the weekend visitor in Nantucket.

It is not just that the escapist is likely to exchange one kind of threat for another — the crime and clangor of the city fading to the sterility of the suburbs. Nor is it only that usually the suburbanite still is dependent on the city for much of what makes his life possible.

The real point is that there is, in fact, no place to hide from the kind of society we have created, or allowed to develop. The blacks and the poor didn't make that society; it put them in their present places. The city doesn't make modern life unpleasant; modern life is rendering the city intolerable. The suburb, the weekend house, the island in the sea or the woods, can't be walled off against change and turmoil growing out of the kind of people we are and the kind of lives we lead; they can only delay recognition and delude the hopeful.

So it is good to be here on a glittering weekend, to hear the wind over the moors instead of the ominous mutter of the city. But it is not good enough; Nantucket Sound is no wider; and the old American habit of picking up and moving on won't do anymore. The wild, free place is there left to go?

SPEAKING OUT:

Jesus Hype Trappings, Motivations Draw Fire

By STEVEN LEVINE

Don't misunderstand me please, I don't deny that there really are some. I have actually seen them downtown handing out their wretched little porno-tracto. "The Hollywood Free Paper." I have, in fact, even witnessed an atonal gospel singing orgy conducted by a group of them that must have numbered at least 40. Somewhere, I know for a fact, they have offices and retreat camps and basements with printing presses in them.

There are such things as Jesus freaks, to this I accede. Fearfully, I will go so far as to warrant that their numbers are expanding and that this expansion is likely, woefully, to continue.

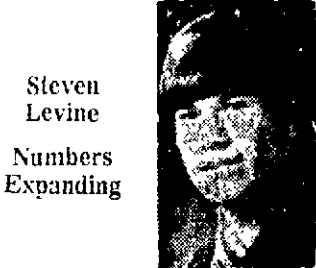

For about a year now reports have appeared with increasing regularity in the straight media to the effect that those young people who rejected everything offered them back in 1967 and took to dope and this and that, have been turning from their dissolute ways toward a life of fundamentalist Christianity. All that sex and celebration, it has been heralded, has given way to the serene and smiling, handsome, wholesome cherubs of the Time cover story, nervous, not-too-bright, homely, sad kids, glassy-eyed with fanaticism.

Not incidentally, the organizations to which they belong are primarily long-established evangelist outfits run at a profit by church elders in the Gerald L. K. Smith tradition.

The real sponsors of the Jesus movement are the media hacks of Madison Avenue.

Look at things, if you can do that sort of thing to your mind without breaking it, from the vantage of the pop journalists whose occupation (livelihood, dig it) is to spot trends. Now they've been on top of everything that looked like a youth movement born in this land since 1960. They have watched over the civil rights, Peace Corps thing, the folk music scene, the New Left revolt, the hippie trip, the rock colossus, the mad-bomber thing, the ecology jag, the electoral politics riff.

Now where can they go? They've established in the ad-dled mind of America that this generation is seriously different a passable amount of perspicacity, prepared to believe that a substantial number of youthful Americans are prepared to Come Out for Christ, by God.

Well, that's a scow full of garbage. I'd just like to see a census of the Jesus freak population in the United States. From point-blank range observation I would bet it would reveal that there are fewer than 25,000. I would further wager that most of them are not former hippies at all, but rather the children of religious families, or at least thoroughly conservative middle class families, and that their world experience is of that world. I would also suggest that their average age is around 17. Moreover, most of the ones I've met have been, rather than the serene and smiling, handsome, wholesome cherubs of the Time cover story, nervous, not-too-bright, homely, sad kids, glassy-eyed with fanaticism.

Not incidentally, the organizations to which they belong are primarily long-established evangelist outfits run at a profit by church elders in the Gerald L. K. Smith tradition.

The real sponsors of the Jesus movement are the media hacks of Madison Avenue.

Look at things, if you can do that sort of thing to your mind without breaking it, from the vantage of the pop journalists whose occupation (livelihood, dig it) is to spot trends. Now they've been on top of everything that looked like a youth movement born in this land since 1960. They have watched over the civil rights, Peace Corps thing, the folk music scene, the New Left revolt, the hippie trip, the rock colossus, the mad-bomber thing, the ecology jag, the electoral politics riff.

Now where can they go? They've established in the ad-dled mind of America that this generation is seriously different from their own. They have committed it to edge city. They can't after all that, allow "the kids" to just drop from view. There is a constant demand for new movements. So out comes this album called "Jesus Christ Superstar" and it sells and a very few dumb hippies flip over all the mysterious cant and ritual of Christianity, and the media vultures are circling o'erhead in mere minutes.

Unfortunately the above-mentioned fads have illustrated that the media not only observe, they affect. In a mass society, of which ours is so far the only extant example, individual identity is derived primarily from social function. People behave as they are told they behave.

Thus I fear that, having been told they are pro-Jesus, millions of impressionable 14-year-olds will shortly go forth witnessing right and left all-over-the-holy-place.

Termed Objectionable This is objectionable for the same reasons the artificial new left and the artificial hippie movements have proved objectionable. Hype movements are form without content. They are merely collections of commonly held, socially imposed, idiosyncratic behaviors, routinized alienation. They lack a philosophical base.

Religion in particular, when unattached to an ethical ground, is a pure horror. A religion is a way of viewing the universe. Its ritual, without that overview, is fetishism, superstition, magic, ultimate madness. The Gospels see such things as the work of Satan.

Truly, they can easily be employed to Satan's ends. What could serve the interests of state capital better than a return to the code if unquestioning duty that has always marked American religious fanaticism? If religion is the opium of the masses, religious hysteria is their heroin.

There are some Jesus freaks now, and I guess there'll have to be more later. It is a hope, a dim one, that at last and at least, a movement offered for public consumption is inherently odious enough not to sell too, too awfully well.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Saturday

Cancer-born individuals are great to have around during times of emergency especially where family affairs are affected. Pisces persons are physically drawn to Cancer natives; those born under Cancer often marry Capricorn individuals. Where money is concerned Leo is the best bet for Cancer. Some famous persons born under Cancer include Paul Harris, Jack Dempsey and Susan Hayward.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Domestic tranquility may be temporary shattered. What you had taken for granted changes. Mate or partner acts in unorthodox manner. This need not be adverse. Instead, it could stimulate and challenge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pacing is of special importance. Don't spread efforts over too wide an area. Realize what you start. Relative who is impatient would best be ignored -- in polite way. Important call is due.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Conserve funds; protect assets. Shun clear of speculative schemes. New approach to security seems necessary. Be open to fresh approach. Obstacle to progress soon will be lifted. Be confident.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Investment procedure changes but works in your favor. Family member may be obstinate. Heed your own counsel. Circumstances point out efforts. You gain added insights. Be aware of property values.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A contract or other document, which has been hidden or lost, makes reappearance. Shun causes, reasons. Be aware of various implications. Don't be in too much of a hurry. Check alibi.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't mix friendship and money. Be specific -- and practical. Some barriers come down -- but they are not all. Nothing new is going to hand you anything on proverbial silver platter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may have your own personal organization is concerned. Apply also to home and family. Be aware of long-range implications. Not wise to take situations, persons for granted. And don't brood about past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Shaveup occurs where your personal organization is concerned. Apply also to home and family. Be aware of long-range implications. Not wise to take situations, persons for granted. And don't brood about past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ideas, concepts, plans may appear now. To be jellivable. They are shaky. Be perceptive enough to separate the real from the wishful thinking. Many now offer blandishments. Reject them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Future is brighter than might now be apparent. Key is to realize this and adhere to game plan. Means don't lose sight of ultimate goal. Permit application to reveal plans. Play waiting game.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish rather than initiate projects. Attend to basic chores. Take nothing for granted. Long-range plans subject to sudden change. Your own philosophical concepts undergo revision. Be open to truth.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotions, emotions are rampant. Nothing new is halfway -- all the way or nothing. Specifically, loved one and money requirements may conflict. And don't brood about past.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are frank, forthright -- usually calm to the heart of matter. Some don't appreciate this -- but it is your way and you should adhere to it. If single, marriage is not far away.

Commissioners Have LOMR Control

COUNTY ATTY. PAUL DOUGLAS RULES IN AN OPINION

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Commissioners do have control over the operations of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR), Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas ruled in an opinion released Friday.

He said, in his opinion, the county board has the authority to limit, withdraw and delegate responsibility to LOMR and that the commissioners have the power to limit and expand the authority of the director of LOMR.

Douglas said he based his opinion on the terms contained within the cooperative agreement which created LOMR.

According to that agreement, Douglas said, LOMR is operated and maintained by Lancaster County and the government vested in the county and board of commissioners.

'Complete Control'

He said according to the agreement, the commissioners appoint the administrative board to administer LOMR operations, "and I think the county board has complete control over it."

He said the LOMR board has only the power the commissioners have delegated to it and commissioner have the right, in his opinion, to withdraw that power, limit or expand it.

Douglas said he felt the county board has control over the employment policies of LOMR with respect to personnel and recommended that the state and county welfare directors, the county commissioners and director of LOMR have a meeting very soon to "get their problems solved."

Earlier this week, Mrs. Eleanor Enersen and other interested parties had urged the county board to investigate the programs at LOMR and changes of staff.

She said LOMR staff members are being replaced with individuals who are inexperienced and "not comfortable" with retarded persons.

Steps Intended

At that time the board indicated that steps would be taken to appoint a committee of at least three persons and the Lincoln Health and Hospital Council was asked to cooperate in helping set up a committee.

LOMR Director John Luebs, said earlier this week he would welcome a study but the commissioners cannot control the program only through control of the LOMR board.

He said the county board created the LOMR board which operates the program and that the commissioners have the "right to ask questions and expect answers."

However, he said, the county board's directive that no further changes be made until after the study would not have to be followed by LOMR since the LOMR board had approved all the changes made.

He confirmed that nine staff members in the child development division of LOMR, which has 23 job positions, have been given 30 days notice of their release.

Mental Health's Tight Budget Impact Uncertain

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Dr. Robert Osborne told the Legislature's Appropriations Committee Friday he is uncertain what effect tight budget recommendations will have on the state's mental health programs.

"We cannot say what the impact will be," the medical services division director in the Department of Public Institutions noted.

"This is a fiscal-type budget with decisions made by fiscal-type people."

"We're going to strive to maintain our current programmatic level. That's all I can say."

Cuts Called For

The budget proposal submitted by the department called for general fund cuts at the Hastings Regional Center, the Norfolk Regional Center, the Lincoln Regional Center, the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute at Omaha and the Panhandle Mental Health Center.

All-funds budgets for the institutions were about the same as the current fiscal year, but cash fund estimates were questioned by a number of officials.

Jack Cleavenger, the department's fiscal officer, said he thinks a total cash fund estimate for the agency of something more than $11 million would be "safe," whereas the submitted request anticipated a $13.2 million figure.

NPI Director Dr. Merrill Eaton said the cash estimate for his institution was "unrealistic."

Not Enough

Furthermore, he told the committee, the budget proposed for NPI cannot support current programs.

New programs in the care of patients with drug problems and the short-term care of adolescent patients, both authorized by the Legislature, could only be funded for nine months of the fiscal year or other programs would need to be cut or curtailed, Eaton said.

If recommended 5% salary increases are to be provided for institutions employees, Cleavenger said, the number of NPI employees would need to be cut from the present 261 to 233 in order to remain within its recommended budget.

The department's budget proposal also envisioned personnel cuts at the hospitals in Hastings, Lincoln and Norfolk, amounting to 21, two and five respectively.

Cut To 613

Hastings Director Dr. Martin Albert said he could reduce the number of employees to 613 "without cutting programs."

The budget proposal envisioned 607 with accompanying 5% salary increases.

The budget, Cleavenger said, was prepared by fiscal officers on the department's staff in conjunction with the governor's budget office.

M. E. Wyant, administrator at the Beatrice State Home for the mentally retarded, said he "intends to maintain as nearly as possible the program we now have" within the recommended budget.

His all-funds budget remains about static within the department's recommendations, but general fund support would fall by nearly 54%.

However, Wyant pointed out, the patient load at Beatrice is expected to fall from the current 1,423 to 1,350 by July 1.

Federal Rules On Food Stamps Clarified By Welfare Department

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The State Welfare Department Friday clarified how new federal requirements governing food stamps will affect Nebraska recipients.

The new procedures which went into effect Dec. 1 are designed to eliminate program inequities between the states. State Director Lawrence Graham said for some the new rules will mean increased cost for food coupons while for others the cost will drop.

One of the major changes makes college students ineligible to receive food stamps.

'Ineligible'

"A person over 18 years of age who is a tax dependent of a parent or guardian and is living separately from the taxpayer is ineligible unless the taxpayer household is certified to purchase food coupons," Graham said.

Another similar restriction states that all "persons" living in a household must be related to each other."

The new standards also set up a new schedule of combined incomes to determine eligibility.

Incomes Listed

A single person receiving food coupons must not have a net monthly income in excess of $170. A household of two may not have an income in excess of $222. For three, the limit is $293; for four, $360; for five $427; for six, $493; for seven, $547; for eight, $600; for nine $653; and for ten, $706.

The recipient must also be a resident in the county in which he applies for food coupons and must have cooking facilities to prepare food.

The requirements further states that the individual must not have assets or resources over $1,500. Bonds, certificates, savings and property are considered assets. However, the family home, furniture, appliances, personal property and one licensed vehicle are not considered assets under the program.

The last restriction is that "all persons between the ages of 18 and 65 must register for employment unless they are employed, disabled, a student at least 50% of the time must care for minor children or work at least 30 hours per week."

Citation May Be Filed In Westview Problem

Steps will probably be taken next week to file a citation against Lancaster County for operating Westview without a license. Joe Hageman of the State Health Department licensing division, said Friday.

Hageman said that his office will ask the county attorney to file action for an injunction to stop operation of the home to which 45 residents were moved back last month after being temporarily housed at Lancaster Manor following a fire at Westview Sept. 24.

Hageman said that if the county attorney can't handle the matter since Westview is a county-operated facility, the action may have to be handled through the attorney general's office.

Needs Statement

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher had said earlier he would not issue a board and room license for Westview until he received a signed statement from City-County Health Director Dr. George Underwood that none of the persons residing there require care.

He explained that the law specifically provides that a board and room license is for board and room only and does not include any care.

Kreuscher told The Star Friday that he had not received the signed statement from Dr. Underwood and that he had discussed the situation with Dr. Underwood and County Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert, who then "withdrew their efforts" to obtain the board and room license.

No License Renewal

Kreuscher said his office will not renew any board and room license now in effect if the facility provides any type of care for the residents.

This, he said, becomes a part of the health department jurisdiction and the facility will have to seek nursing home licensing if it is possible.

County Commissioner William Grossman, who was not aware the Westview residents had been moved back until after the move had occurred, told The Star that if Westview is forced to cease operation, room for the residents will have to be sought outside the county.

He said the County Board foresaw the problem with Westview and the closing of many other former nursing and care facilities when it purchased the former St. Elizabeth Hospital for use as a nursing home.

However, he said, maximum capacity at Lancaster Manor is considerably below the need for nursing home space for the indigent in Lancaster County.

NU Yearbook May Be Ended With Next Edition

The Cornhusker, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln yearbook, is reportedly in financial trouble on the Lincoln campus and next spring's book could be the last, according to campus sources.

As student populations have grown on the Lincoln campus, yearbook sales have fallen off, and Jody Beck, editor of the 1972 book, attributes declining sales to "how big the university community is."

Six years ago, about 4,000 annuals were sold but sales dropped to 2,300 last spring and orders for the 1972 book stand at 1,500.

"Yearbooks used to be sold on the basis of college spirit," Miss Beck said. "But that doesn't exist anymore."

Paris Swingers Charged With Drug Violation

Paris (AP) — A 55-year-old French millionaire and his wife of 24 leading members of the swinging Paris social set — were formally charged with breaches of French narcotics law.

Albert and Josiane Debarge face possible penalties of two to 10 years in jail and fines up to $10 million if convicted of having aided others to use drugs, whether for gain or not.

They were arrested after 53 capsules of the heroin substitute, methadone, were found in Mrs. Debarge's baggage when she flew in from Amsterdam on Sunday.

Salvation Army Tree Of Lights At 25% Of Goal

The Salvation Army "Christmas Tree of Lights" fund raising program is at 25% of its $15,000 goal, said Maj. Ross Zarfis.

The money will be used to help families in need during the Christmas season.

Zarfis also said the Army's Christmas office will be open Monday to applicants in the city who have a need for Christmas aid. He said applicants must appear at the office in person, no telephone calls will be accepted. The office is open Monday through Friday, from 9:30 a.m. to noon, and 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Federal Building Clearing On N St., 15th To 16th Set

Washington — Work will begin Monday on clearing part of the site for the future Lincoln Federal Building, Rep. Charles Thone announced Friday.

Frieden Construction Co. of Lincoln has a $16,665 contract from the U.S. General Service Administration for the work.

The half block facing N St. between 15th and 16th will be cleared except for the service station on the northeast corner of 15th and N.

Three buildings will be torn down, the basements will be filled in and the area will be graveled for parking.

Because the buildings represent hazards, Thone has been urging the GSA to clear these buildings while awaiting funding for construction of the new federal facilities.

2 Streets Open And 2 Closed

The openings of 51st St. from Orchard to X St. and of 56th St. from Van Dorn to Bancroft Ave. were announced Friday by City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

Portions of both 51st and 56th Sts. have been closed for reconstruction.

Portions of streets which will continue to be closed through next week include 56th St. from Van Dorn to Linden and South, both for reconstruction. Holsinger said three streets will be closed until Dec. 15. They are 8th St. from L to M St. for repaving, Pioneers Blvd. from 54th to 57th St. for paving and 67th St. from Leighton Ave. to Garland for paving.

Dr. Egbert: Educational Progress Will Depend On Citizens, Teachers

Education will go where educators and citizens want it to go, according to Dr. Robert Egbert, dean of the teachers college at the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Egbert, speaking to a Nebraska Wesleyan audience on the theme "Where is America Going in Education," said that educational progress will depend upon the dedication of teachers and administrators in assuming responsibility for leadership and of the citizens to demand a financial equalization of the cost of education across a state.

While cynics and pessimists could respond that education is going nowhere, Egbert said there is "justification for hope" that education is making progress and that school leadership is improving year by year.

Besides the developments in career education, Head Start, reading programs, performance contracting and other areas, Egbert talked about future trends in the education of poor and ethnic minorities, community involvement in schools and educational accountability.

Meet Star Carrier Randall Smith

"I wish I had more like him," says Randall Smith's supervisor.

A carrier salesman for The Lincoln Star, Randy has increased his route substantially during the past year. He also has acquired a reputation for error-free service and has made many new friends among his satisfied customers.

A student at Charles Culler Junior High School in Lincoln Randy maintains a above average grades, plays the trombone in the school band and is very enthusiastic about his wood working class.

An outstanding swimmer, Randy is the proud owner of four trophies, 18 medals and countless ribbons -- all of them acquired at local and state swim meets.

Like thousands of other Nebraskans, Randy is a Big Red fan and especially admires the performances of Jeff Kinney Johnny Rodgers and Rich

A widely traveled young man, Randy has visited Minnesota, St. Louis, Mo., Denver and has fished in the Black Hills.

As to the future, Randy plans to go to college and major in mathematics.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, feel that a paper route provides a good opportunity to acquire a sense of responsibility and to meet a wide variety of people. And Randy cites the fun of having his own spending money as another added advantage of his job.

countability needs to be based on more than just a performance criteria. It must include accountability in terms of the differences made in the lives of children.

Rather than just showing whether children have achieved, testing programs must also show if they are happy in the process, whether they have learned to work together, whether they like school and feel it is doing something for them.

Humble Oil Co. Scientist Lectures, Presents Grant

Insights into petroleum exploration are being provided geology students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln this week by the senior geological scientists of the Humble Oil and Refining Company.

Hunter Yarborough lectured to NU geology classes on this topic and also presented the geology department the fourth in a series of $2,500 annual grants that are used to purchase equipment used in research and teaching.

In an evening lecture, Yarborough explained the concept of "continental drift", indicating that 2 1/2 billion years ago the earth had only two major continents.

"We believe that those two major land masses broke up into smaller continents and drifted apart", explaining that the crust of the earth floats on top the molten inside of this planet.

According to Yarborough, a University of Texas graduate, there is a lot of data to back up this idea of "continental drift." He points out that the west coast of the African and east coast of the South American continents could be fitted together with very little space left between.

He added that the same age and type rocks have been found on the corresponding coastlines and that known faults in each continent would make one life if they were fitted together.

The geologist also pointed out that with the use of a seismograph they can hear this movement continuing. Yarborough said that the Atlantic is growing wider and the Pacific narrower as a result of continuing drift, which he estimated at about two inches per year.

Former Students Honor Beckmann

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty member, Dr. Milton Beckmann, is the fourth mathematics educator to be honored by his former students who contributed more than $1,000 to a building fund for the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Dr. Beckmann, professor of secondary education and supervisor of mathematics in the NU Teachers College, has long been recognized by his students as an outstanding teacher and as a person dedicated to helping students become better human beings as well as competent teachers of mathematics.

During the past 20 years, his graduate students have become authors of mathematics textbooks, administrators of major school systems, and heads of mathematics departments in universities.

Weymouth Speaks At Kansas State

University of Nebraska-Lincoln physics professor, John Weymouth, is leading a colloquium and a specialized seminar for students and faculty members at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kan. this week.

Prof. Weymouth has been involved in a carbon 14 dating

"I'd like to 'spread the gospel' to others about the success of this project on our campus," he said.

Young, But Talented Ballerinas

For the past two months, seven children from the Lincoln area have been trouping to Omaha for rehearsals. The children are all members of the cast of "Nutcracker Suite" which will be performed by the Omaha Civic Ballet in Lincoln on Sunday, Dec. 12.

Auditions for the ballet were held in Omaha in the early fall when over 50 children were selected to be in the company. The children range from grade school to senior high school, with the two lead roles danced by members of the Stephens College School of Dance Repertory, Columbia, Mo.

Since the middle of October, six Lincoln sixth and seventh graders including Jody and Jill Pershing, Kari Ravnar, Leighann Roth, Lori Kidd and Janette Svoboda, as well as Penny Pappas of Waverly, have been going to Omaha once a week for rehearsals. But as performance time approached the rehearsals have increased and during the past two weeks the girls have been rehearsing two to three times each week.

The ballet is being brought to Lincoln through the sponsorship of Theatre Arts For Youth (TAFY). According to Mrs. Robert Burton, Lincoln Nutcracker chairman, "This is a perfect way to introduce your children to the wonders of good music and dance."

The enchanting "Nutcracker Suite" by Peter Tchaikovsky will, of course, be the beautiful background music for the ballet and will be played by members of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra, with Leo Kopp conducting.

The two dancers from Stephens College are Laurie Fuller, who has studied dance in Los Angeles and who will dance the Sugar Plum Fairy; and Fred Mathews, an instructor in Dance Repertory at Stephens, who dances in the role of the prince.

The Nutcracker Suite is a rather traditional ballet at Christmas time, as it tells the tale of young Clara Stahlbaum who, after the excitement of a Christmas Eve at her home, dreams of being taken to a fairy land where she encounters a wondrous world of fantasy. A wooden nutcracker which is carved as a soldier has been given to Clara as a gift, and in her dream the nutcracker becomes a life-like prince who takes her through the adventure.

Valerie Roche of Omaha is choreographer of the ballet company which will perform at both 3 o'clock and 7:30 o'clock at the Stuart Theatre.

Back Stage -- With Disney On Parade

Behind the many colorful costumes and spectacular headgear of the "Disney On Parade" cast which is now playing at Pershing Auditorium, there lies a troupe of very proficient dancers.

Before the opening of the show each evening, all 60 cast members gather on stage where portable barres are set up, for dance class under the direction of Frank Spolar, ballet master and stage manager.

There is a hush on stage as class begins. Unlike most ballet classes, there is no musical accompaniment. Mr. Spolar demonstrates the step and then vocally keeps count as the class runs through the rigorous warm up.

Discipline is one of the key words of ballet, and traveling on the road often leaves dancers a bit weary. However, according to Joanne DiVito, women's dance captain for the show, there is no need to fall behind technically. The dance class lasts one hour, and both men and women are put through their paces.

The dancers are selected from all over the country. For instance, Miss Valerie Smith, who dances the role of Snow White, calls Victoria, B.C. her home. "At one time I was interested in joining a ballet musical comedy and wouldn't company, but now I love give it up," she reports. Miss Smith, who relates that being on the move doesn't bother her, has been with the Disney production for a year.

Ken Porter, production stage manager for the show, has worked as a stage manager for some 20 years now, but feels this is the best company with which he ever has worked. The average age of the cast is 20 years, and he finds them both young and eager to do well.

Bethany Park Heights Meadow Lane Fiene Heights Rosemont

Suburban residents have been setting themselves a merry pace during the very recent past and, we might add, it is a pace that shows few signs of slowing down in the weeks to come. However, we haven't heard anyone complaining, leading us to surmise that Lincoln inhabitants are content with their lot as a group of the world's busiest people!

We know from past experience that Bethany Park Heights residents Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Roelle and children, Cynthia and Curtis, are quite accustomed to a great deal of activity. Without a doubt, however, the festivities which occurred at the Roelle home during the last week's holiday, brought with them even more busy-ness than usual — and the busiest of the busy just happened to be Mrs. Roelle.

Twenty-four persons for Thanksgiving dinner would keep any chef in the kitchen for quite some time — but we understand that thanks to planning and advance preparation, Mrs. Roelle found time to sit down and enjoy the Nebraska-Oklahoma football game with everyone else before the traditional holiday dinner was served.

On hand for the most enjoyable get-together were both Mr. and Mrs. Roelle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Rainforth and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roelle, who returned to their Litchfield homes the following day: Mrs. Roelle's brother-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Callaway and family of Grand Island, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Freeland and family of Hampton, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kwiatkowski and family of Omaha; and Mr. Gallaway's mother, Mrs. Selma Gallaway of Grand Island. We must also mention two very special guests — Alexander Siu-Kay Ng and Albert Chi-Piu Cheung, both of Hong Kong — who are students at the University of Nebraska. The two young men spent the entire holiday weekend at the Roelle home.

suburbia

Mrs. Roelle tells us that they were especially happy to visit with the Gallaway family, who moved to a new home near Little Rock, Ark., this week.

A bit of holiday traveling was on the agenda last week for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Witt and sons, George and Fred, Jr., who make their home in Fiene Heights. The Witts motored to Ralston where they were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Witt's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tad Dunham and children, David and Ted.

Arriving in Lincoln for a holiday visit with Rosemont residents Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Erickson, were Mrs. Erickson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Blankenship and daughter, Linda, of Omaha; and we understand that Linda remained at the Erickson home until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Erickson have rolled out the red carpet again this weekend to welcome three out-of-state visitors. Traveling to Lincoln yesterday from their home in Kansas City were Mrs. Erickson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blankenship, and daughter, Beth Ann. We have a feeling that the young Miss Blankenship, who is just five months old, and who never has met her uncle and aunt from Lincoln, will be quite the center of attention until Sunday when she and her parents will return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Erickson's sons, Galen and David, both of whom are stationed at Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, are also taking part in the weekend reunion.

Slightly belated birthday greetings are in order for Mrs. Samuel Peters of Meadow Lane who became a year older on Wednesday, Dec. 1. Mrs. Peters will do a bit of celebrating later today when she and her husband entertain guests at their home. An evening of pinocle is planned, and participating in the fun will be a foursome from Omaha — Mr. and Mrs. Fred James and Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Wrightson — Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Elder.

Bride At An Evening Ceremony

the late Mr. Karre, took place at the Sacred Heart Church in Greeley on Friday evening, Nov. 26. The Rev. Frank Curran of North Platte, brother of the bride, solemnized the 7 o'clock ceremony.

Miss Jane Curran was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaid, Mrs. James Goulay of Lincoln, and bridesmaids Miss Sally Curran of Grand Island and Miss Julie Curran, also are sisters of the bride.

Dan Karre of Grand Island served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Terry Kennedy, Robert Curran, David Karre of Lincoln, brother of the bridegroom; James Curran, also of Lincoln, and John Murphy of Gibbon.

The bride appeared in a gown of white peau de soie and peau d'ange lace. The lace-patterned bodice was designed with a high duchess neckline, and full, lace-cuffed lantern sleeves. The lace motif was repeated to border the hem of the A-line skirt which was completed with a chapel train. A crown of lace and pearls held in place her tiered veil of silk illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of Marymount College at Salina, Kan., where she majored in mathematics, and is careering with the Farmers Mutual of Nebraska Insurance Co. Mr. Karre is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where he is a member of Phi Epsilon Kappa honorary, and currently is a graduate assistant in the physical education department at the University of Nebraska.

At the first table, South bid a spade, West doubled, and North jumped to four spades, which East doubled. West led a diamond and South made the contract with two overtricks. He won, drew trumps, discarded dummy's two hearts on his diamonds, and lost only a club trick. He thus scored 1,190 points.

East's double was decidedly out of order. True, he had some defensive strength, but he should have realized from the bidding that his hand was also very well suited for a heart or club contract.

North's leap to four spades strongly suggested that West had either one spade or none. East could therefore have concluded that West had considerable support for hearts and clubs, and that his hand was highly promising with either suit as trump. Instead of doubling he should have bid five hearts or five clubs.

At the second table, East-West likewise missed their cue. Here South also opened with a spade, which West elected to pass. Apparently West didn't appreciate his distributional values in choosing to pass. He was probably too point-count oriented and very likely thought he couldn't double with only 11 points.

North bid four spades and that ended the auction. West led a diamond and again declarer made six, but because he wasn't doubled the score came to only 680 points.

So the East-West pair at this table also fared badly, though they did gain 510 points on the deal.

Speaker Says Peddling Racial Unrest A Reality

Dr. John Akar, formerly Sierra Leone ambassador to the U.S., said Friday that a "foremost reality of our times is the peddling of racial antagonism."

And he said, "America is the pivot around which the whole of humanity swings."

Dr. Akar, who resigned his ambassador post last April and is currently assistant vice president at the University of California at Berkeley, addressed a student convocation at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

During a news conference, Dr. Akar said, "If you do not come to terms with your poverty, racism, ghettoism and other social issues, then America will follow the footsteps of preceding empires and will fall from within."

"The destiny of the world is entwined in your (America's) future," he said.

But as a periodic visitor to the U.S. during the past 25 years, Dr. Akar said he has seen "enormous changes for the better."

"There is a basic decency in Americans that fights against bigotry and injustice," he said. "It takes a lot of time for Americans to make up their minds, but then they come to the forefront for change."

"Brotherhood is an extremely expensive commodity," he said. "It sometimes requires a price we are not prepared to pay. Sometimes it means one's life comes to a cruel and abrupt end like the Kennedys and Martin Luther King."

Dr. Akar said he resigned his post when President Siaka Stevens came to power, and

"multilated the democratic process and locked up all opposition."

He said his country's leader is a dictator and a Communist, and "I am opposed to both."

Dr. Akar expressed great hope in the Organization of African Unity and said the OAU's involvement in trying to mediate between Israel and Egypt is a great effort at "looking beyond our own boundaries."

"If it is successful, bringing these factions together will be important to the whole world," he said. "Even if it is not successful, it does show the organization is pointed in the right direction."

Stressing the world need for brotherhood, Dr. Akar said, "God in His inscrutable wisdom has taken the white of Europe, the black of Africa the brown of the Mideast, the yellow of Asia and the red of the American Indian to weave into a beautiful and sacred tapestry called humanity."

"Let us not soil it with our prejudices."

Caster Named In Lincoln Warrant

An arrest warrant for 41-year-old Thomas R. Caster in connection with the Tuesday night robbery of the Bismarck Tavern at 1546 O was being delivered Friday to authorities at Cheyenne, Wyo., according to Lincoln Police Inspector Robert Sawdon.

Sawdon said Caster is being held by Cheyenne police in connection with the holdup of a Holiday Inn there, but he has also given a statement regarding the Lincoln holdup.

Two Lincoln officers, Capt. Robert Butler and Lt. Roger LaPage, have been sent to Cheyenne to talk with authorities and Caster.

Sawdon said Cheyenne authorities have indicated Caster will be held for prosecution there, but a hold order is being placed for Nebraska.

More than $100 was taken from the Bismarck Tavern by an armed gunman who shot a bullet into the floor and threatened an off-duty bartender, according to police.

Liquor Officer's Talk Ends With Illustrative Incident

Lexington — An enforcement officer for the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission, Ernest Mason of North Platte, had just completed a talk before the Southwest Nebraska Peace Officers Association when he was called from the room.

State Patrolman George Amos of Lexington had stopped a 19-year-old Cozad youth allegedly carrying six-pack cartons of beer from the Midwest Liquors store.

Mason said he would submit a report on the incident to the commission.

He had been speaking on liquor control regulations at the Wednesday night meeting.

Amos said that the youth, Donald Nicholson, was given a summons ticket and appeared in court Thursday, pleaded guilty and was fined $100 on a charge of being a minor in possession.

Miners Killed

Taipei (UPI) — A coal mine at Keelung in northern Taiwan caved in after an explosion, killing at least 41 miners, authorities said.

Provincial police said seven other miners were injured, four of them seriously. A preliminary police investigation showed the explosion was caused by leaking gas. Another gas explosion at the same mine on the same date in 1942 killed 49 miners.

Poor People Are The Losers In Major Housing Scandal

©The New York Times

Detroit — A major scandal involving federal housing programs in Detroit has left the government owner of thousands of decrepit homes and may cost up to $200 million in federal funds.

The federal housing program here has also contributed to the decay of already troubled neighborhoods, victimized the poor who expected homes and enriched real estate speculators.

The details of the scandal have been emerged for months in newspaper stories, local investigations, and, this week, in an investigation of the legal and monetary affairs subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee, which held hearings here Friday.

Similar troubles exist in other cities but Detroit is believed to be the worst example of the perversion of a program created to help house the poor. This program, begun in 1968, allows the Federal Housing Administration to help the poor, including welfare mothers, to buy homes.

At its worst, the program in Detroit worked this way:

A real estate speculator would buy a shabby house in a run down neighborhood for $3,000 or $4,000, perhaps spend another $1,500 or so in minor repairs, then seek out a buyer for the house, advertising for mothers receiving Aid to Dependent Children funds, or seeking tenants who were being evicted for non-payment of rent.

The FHA appraisers — 20 of them, working for fees, have since been fired — would then appraise the house at $12,000 or so and the FHA would insure the mortgage for that figure. The speculator might even put up the $200 needed for the new owner's down payment. In a few months he would have doubled his investment.

But the new owner might now have a house with a ruined furnace or leaking roof or dangerous wiring which called for costly repairs. The FHA was paying no attention to the complaints, either, at first. The owner would stop paying rent since he didn't have enough money for the rent and the repairs, and eventually the house would be taken over by the FHA. But for a year or two it might stand vacant, be vandalized, burned, or used as a haven for narcotics users, a cycle which helped ruin the neighborhoods.

Such cases have been documented and Friday William C. Whitebeck, director for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, used such an example in testifying to the House Committee.

The FHA owned in this area, as of Nov. 22, 3,852 homes through foreclosure and repossession, with a potential loss of nearly $60 million. Eighty per cent of these homes are within the city of Detroit. On July 1, 1969, the agency owned only 810, of which 80% were outside the city.

And as of Oct. 31 another 21,022 properties "were in default and/or foreclosure." Whitebeck told the House Committee. The government's General Accounting Office, which also investigated the situation noted that the government, which insures the mortgages, loses an average of $9,974 on each repossessed house, and said the FHA insurance fund could lose $200 million. It also could mean that the FHA would own 7% or so of Detroit's single and duplex homes. In some decaying neighborhoods of this city, HUD already owns 5 to 10% of the houses.

"Not only are such homes the cause of major expenses which the low-income purchaser is scarcely able to meet," they also are simply not adequate living quarters which, of course, leads directly to default by the disappointed and frustrated purchaser," he said.

Some cases have been turned over to the federal attorney here for investigation but to date there have been no prosecutions. Whitebeck noted that no collusion has been proved between FHA appraisers who valued a home at two or three times what a speculator had paid for it only months before.

"Which doesn't mean it's not going on," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

Other problems have resulted in the FHA foreclosing on large apartment houses in this area that were undergoing rehabilitation under federal programs. Whitebeck said inner city rehabilitation is at least 10 times as hard as building new housing in the suburbs.

Because of the troubles here, HUD is now attempting to make certain not substandard homes are insured by the FHA HUD is also making a greater effort to hear owner complaints about the homes they have bought with FHA financing, and have pressured some speculators, real estate men and mortgage lenders to make repairs on homes, Whitebeck said.

Con Artist Bilks Bank Of Cash By Telephone

Jacksonville, Fla. — A con artist with a smooth telephone manner talked a bank out of $8,040 and arranged for the money to be delivered to a series of businesses before he finally picked it up and walked away with it, thanks to a lot of trusting people.

The man called the downtown Barnett Bank here Thursday morning and identified himself as an executive for a local firm, a bank spokesman said Friday.

"He knew the routine of our bank down to the first names of people who work in sensitive areas," the spokesman said. The caller asked that $8,040 in small bills be withdrawn from the company account and delivered by armored car to the main office of the St. Regis Paper Co. for Christmas bonuses.

By the time the money reached the office, the banker said, the man had already called the receptionist and, identifying himself as an executive with another firm, asked her to give the money parcel to a cab driver.

The cab driver delivered it to a restaurant cashier who later handed it over to a man who appeared at the height of the lunch hour crush. It was the only time the caller was seen; he had manipulated everyone else by telephone.

On Friday, the banker said, "We've been engaged in a series of maneuvers today commonly called locking the barn door."

"We'll continue to accept telephone requests from our clients in the future," he said, but "I guarantee you it's going to be a little tighter."

And what's become of the telephone facitician?

"He's sitting somewhere now with a scotch and water in his hand laughing at our red faces," the banker theorized.

$93,251 And Car Are Stolen From Kennedy Airport

New York City — A car with $93,251 in its trunk was stolen from Kennedy Airport Friday, police said.

The car, owned by the Payroll Express Corp. of Newark, N.J., was taken while three armed employees of the company were inside a hangar cashing checks for airport workers.

The service operates at the airport twice a week.

The driver was identified as Carl Feria of Elizabeth, N.J. The names of his two assistants were not released.

Carl Becker

Turns Self In

Carl Becker, a Penal Complex inmate missing from a work release program in Omaha Thursday, turned himself over to Omaha authorities Friday morning.

Becker, who has been returned to the complex, is serving a five-year term for forged checks. He was placed on the work release program a few days ago. He failed to return to the program center Thursday after work.

South Viet Troops Uncover Several Ammunition Caches

Saigon (AP) — Fighting picked up in South Vietnam's drive in eastern Cambodia Friday but action lagged on other fronts in Indochina.

South Vietnamese paratroopers and armor operating 12 to 15 miles northeast of Chum in eastern Cambodia reported killing 11 enemy troops and capturing seven weapons and 10 big rockets in three separate contacts.

In the Dam Be enemy base area, 25 miles inside Cambodia and 20 miles north of Highway 7, paratroopers killed five enemy while suffering two dead and 16 wounded, official military sources reported.

The airborne troops also captured an enemy truck and destroyed an ammunition cache containing 140 rocket grenades and 28,000 rounds of small-arms ammunition, the sources said.

An airborne position near Chum was hit by 50 rounds of mortar fire, but the paratroopers suffered no casualties, spokesmen asserted.

Cambodian forces in the Highway 6 area on the northeast front in Cambodia were regrouping in new defensive positions after losing the towns of Baray and Kompung Thmar, Associated Press Correspondent Robin Mannock reported from Phnom Penh. He said fighting had died down on the front after three days of furious combat.

A Cambodian officer estimated 5,000 Cambodian soldiers had quit the front and returned to Phnom Penh but said fresh troops were moving up in Australian-made trucks donated by the U.S. government.

Another officer at the headquarters town of Skoun, 35 miles north of Phnom Penh, said the rest of the original force of 20,000 troops in the northeast were digging in.

He reported the troops were consolidating positions between Tang Krasang, 70 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, and the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 10 miles farther north.

South Vietnam sent a squadron of 24 to 30 Huey transport helicopters plus six to eight gunships to support the Cambodian operations along Highway 6, military sources in Saigon said.

The helicopters are being provided on a temporary basis at the request of the Cambodian government. They are returning nightly to their base at Binh Thuy, near Can Tho in the Mekong Delta, the sources added.

John R. Johnston said he was pleased with the outcome and cost of construction of the $25-student school "appear to be within our range."

School Board Vote Split Allows Gym Rental To 'Superstar' Group

Ralston, Neb. (AP) — The main item on the agenda of the Ralston School Board was the opening of bids for a new school.

But an hour was spent discussing whether the high school gym should be rented to the student council for a Saturday production of "Jesus Christ, Superstar" by a touring company.

Two members of the six-man board were absent and the other four split their votes thus failing to block the presentation.

Several churchmen appeared to oppose the program while several students spoke in favor of it.

The Rev. William Parker, pastor of the Ralston Baptist Church, said the opera presented a "distorted and degrading" view of Christ.

He and several others said the music and opera presented a religious point of view and shouldn't be shown on public school property.

The students said no one would be forced to attend and that there would be several religious displays and programs at the school this year.

The program will be put on by a group from Midland College in Fremont that has previously appeared before several other church organizations.

As for the bids, School Supt.

$111,415 OK'd By Group For Law Enforcement

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The State Crime Commission approved Friday federal grants totaling $111,415 for law enforcement assistance projects.

The Lincoln Police Department was awarded $19,887 to fund tuition costs for 104 officers participating in University of Nebraska courses during off-duty hours.

Also approved was $27,960 to the City of Omaha for the establishment of a rumor control center. The proposed center would disseminate factual information to inquiries so as to squelch rumors and other misinformation contributing to racial unrest.

Other major grants included $15,009 to Hall County for establishment of a half-way house for alcoholics at Grand Island; $14,238 to the State Telecommunications System for additional personnel; and $4,500 for the Stanton County sheriff's office for additional personnel.

LEAA Informs

The commission was informed of the formation by a Kansas City regional office of the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) with a four-state jurisdiction including Nebraska.

Robert Grimes, regional LEAA representative, said the move is intended to give closer liaison with the state commissions and their staffs.

After three years of experience, the federal agency is interested in evaluating state and local programs "to see if they are doing what they're supposed to do."

He said future emphasis will be on crime-oriented programs, program compliance and fiscal responsibility.

Grimes also said Omaha is one of seven cities selected in the "pilot city program" to develop significant law enforcement tools that will help reduce crime.

Funding Is Extra

Federal funding of the pilot city program will be in addition to the normal state allocation of federal assistance fund, he said.

In other action, the commission okayed a $360 grant for an evaluation study of the volunteer probation programs in Lancaster, Seward and Saunders Counties.

The study will be made by six University of Nebraska graduate students and the grant is for actual expense, according to the commission.

The commission also announced that Kenneth W. Willey of Lincoln has joined its staff as police division supervisor, succeeding Garth Dawson Dawson recently resigned to join the Omaha pilot city project.

Willey is a retired lieutenant colonel, formerly with the Army Office of Special Investigations.

Hog Raisers Will Get Cut In Taxes For 1972

Nebraska hog raisers are going to get a 1972 personal property tax break, State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters has announced.

The valuation to be used in taxing grade and registered hogs next year is down sharply from that employed for 1971, some declines being 50%. That reduction reflects a depressed hog market in late 1970 and 1971, Peters said.

By law, the tax commissioner yearly announces livestock property tax valuations for the coming tax period, based on average U.S. Agriculture Dept price figures at the Omaha market for the preceding 12-month period.

Thus the impact of high or low livestock prices is not reflected in tax data for a full year.

Peters reported that of 34 classes of cattle, eight will have increased property tax values next year, 12 will have lower values and the remainder are unchanged. Bulk of the tax valuation increases are in registered cattle and most of the decreases are in grade cattle and cattle on feed.

Except in grade and registered bull classifications, changes are from $5 to $15 per head.

Most sheep tax valuations also are generally lower, Peters said.

Businessmen Interested In Soviet Union

Moscow (UPI) — A brigade of western businessmen Friday roamed a vast new sales territory — the Soviet Union — and pursued potential deals on items ranging from cosmetics to machinery.

A total of 108 executives from 70 western firms completed five days of conferences with Soviet economic managers Thursday. Spokesmen said many headed out on business trips, convinced the Soviets want action now.

"Lots of them are doing business right now," said Orville Freeman, the former U.S. agriculture secretary who now runs the counselling firm that arranged the economic conferences.

"It was expressed again and again by the Soviet leaders (during the talks) that they are ready, willing and anxious to do business with the western world," Freeman told a news conference.

"... A lot of these executives came here to find out if there was a possibility of doing business with the Soviet Union and whether they should take it seriously," he added.

"They are coming away with the impression the Soviets are indeed serious."

The executives represented such firms as Pepsi Cola, Westinghouse, Quaker Oats, IBM, Borg-Warner and Otis Elevator. Freeman said many of the businessmen were scattered over the Soviet Union inspecting plants and talking specifics with their Soviets opposite numbers.

"We anticipate a lot more business," he said, although he added the start might be slow and unpredictable.

Freeman and other spokesmen for Business International, the counselling firm that arranged the "round-table talks," said the Soviets showed sharp interest in deals involving U.S. consumer goods as well as industrial trade and investment.

"One area of consumer goods that was discussed at considerable length was toiletries and cosmetics and women's ... I don't know how you describe it," Freeman said.

"In the whole field of consumer goods, they indicated there are potential markets. So it was consumer goods as well as technology and manufacturing and plants that interested them."

Urbom Tells Journalists They Must Prod Judiciary

Journalists have a duty to remind judges — when they need it — that their black robes don't make them infallible human beings, a federal judge told a group of journalists Friday night.

"You, the press, must constantly prod the judiciary into the highest potential it has," Federal District Judge Warren K. Urbom told members of Sigma Delta Chi, a professional journalistic society.

Judges never should tell a journalist what to say or print — the only restraint must be self-imposed by journalists, he said.

Urbom said the most important function of the press is to inform, not evaluate. But evaluation is a significant part of a journalist's duty, he said, because it gives the public a fresh view they wouldn't receive otherwise.

Journalists and judges have the same responsibility: justice — the protection of legal rights for everyone, Urbom said. The constitutional rights of "free press" and "fair trial" — which often clash — must be weighed equally, he said.

"Secrecy in courts must be at an absolute minimum," Urbom said, adding that some day in court he may regret having made the statement.

In answer to a question, Urbom supported relaxation of local restrictions on picture-taking and photography on the same floor as a trial, but not to the point of live broadcasting of trials.

'Flower Man' Robs Office, Leaves Rose

Miami (UPI) — A "flower delivery man" who robbed a Western Union office of about $2,000 left a rose and a thank-you note for the woman in charge of the office.

Western Union employee Marcia Kazienk told police she was alone in the office when the man knocked and gained entry by saying he was a flower delivery man and displaying a florist's long cardboard box.

Once inside, he pulled a gun, told Miss Kazienk to lie on the floor and cleaned out the open safe. Miss Kazienk found the rose and the thank-you note in the florist's box after the robber had left.

Berk Says Disappointed By Butz Vote

Omaha (AP) — Elton Berk of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union, expressed disappointment Thursday over confirmation of Earl Butz as secretary of agriculture.

However, Berk predicted the Nixon administration will provide a better price support policy on feed grains.

The most critical problem farmers have, he said, "is that Butz has proven he is not sympathetic to the family farmer."

Berk said he had no doubt "that the administration will be helping to support prices for feed grains in order to buy some vote strength."

The position is equivalent to that of acting postmaster but the title has been changed to "officer in charge" under the new Postal Service.

Moore will have been with the postal service 34 years this month. He was assistant postmaster for nine years and was previously a postal inspector.

The Lincoln Sectional Center is responsible for mail operation in southeast Nebraska.

A permanent appointment of postmaster is expected to be made sometime around the first of the year.
